

FRAUD FIRST AID KIT

We understand that resolving issues related to identity theft can be a time consuming process. In order to assist you, we have gathered information from a great number of sources to provide you with a convenient reference guide and a tool for tracking your progress through this process.

The Fraud First Aid Kit has an abundance of contact information, procedures for resolution and safeguarding measures, and for helping you minimize your risk of identity theft in the future. To begin the recovery process, carefully read over the checklist below and work through the more detailed sections in the following pages of this kit.

Please read our Fraud First Aid Kit completely before you begin. Keep as much information as possible in order to help you and law enforcement in recovering your identity. Make sure you follow up on every discussion with agencies and businesses with a letter (return receipt requested), detailing each conversation. Be sure to keep copies for yourself. Other organizations may need copies of these documents as well.

Checklist:

- Review the “Tips for Protecting Yourself” section for things you can do to help minimize future exposure to identity theft.
- Contact the three major credit bureaus and ask that they place a “fraud alert” on your credit file. This alert will notify creditors to call you before issuing new lines of credit in your name.
- Contact all the financial institutions in which you have identified fraudulent activity, by both phone and in writing (we have provided a letter template in this kit for your convenience). Also contact any government agencies and providers where your information was used fraudulently (e.g., the IRS, health care providers, Social Security Administration, etc.).
- Immediately report any fraudulent activity to local, state or federal law enforcement agencies and request an “Identity Theft Report”. (Law enforcement agencies include: the local police, your local Postal Inspector, Attorney General, FBI., etc.).
- Fill out the ID Theft Affidavit provided in this kit and make enough copies to attach to all letters you will send to various agencies, financial institutions, and law enforcement.
- Refer to the Additional Tips section for further information regarding the resolution of your identity theft.

Additional Tips con't.

- Contact the Creditors if your personal information has been used fraudulently; contact the issuing creditor as quickly as possible. You may be asked to provide an Affidavit of Forgery, a police report, or other legal documents indicating that you are a victim.
- Contact your local, state, or federal law enforcement agency about the fraud. If you are not sure which agency to contact, start with your local police department. If a report is filed, obtain a copy for your records.
- Contact the Federal Trade Commission
- The FTC maintains the Identity Theft Data Clearinghouse – the federal government’s centralized identity theft complaint database – and provides information to identity theft victims.

Tips for Protecting Yourself

- When paying your bills online, make sure you are using a secure site (indicated by “https” in your browser).
- Make sure to only give out your credit card number online to websites that are secure. Never use a debit card on the Internet since that card serves as an electronic check, and the money is immediately removed from your account without giving you the opportunity to review the statement for fraud.
- Review your Personal Earnings and Benefits Statement from the Social Security Administration annually.
- Don’t have checks mailed to your home; pick them up at the bank.
- Check your credit reports regularly to confirm no new accounts have been opened without your knowledge.
- Do not provide any personal information to a third party unless you are confident of the purpose and feel secure that the information will not be misused. Never give information by e-mail.
- Shred or destroy all documents that contain personal information before discarding them.
- Remove mail from your mailbox promptly. Get a locked mailbox or P.O. Box if possible.
- Notify your financial institution immediately if you suspect your accounts have been compromised or if you have lost any cards or checks.
- Keep a list of all account numbers in a secure, confidential place in case you experience problems with lost cards or theft of checks.
- Place only minimal personal information on the top of your checks (first and middle name initials plus last name and address).
- Do not store or write PIN information on plastic cards in wallets or purses.
- Report any suspicious activity to law enforcement and your financial institution.
- Be sure to carefully review all account statements regularly. Notify your financial institution immediately if there are discrepancies.
- Ask service providers to stop using your Social Security number as an identifier. Ask for a different ID number.
